JUNE FEATURED ARTISTS MARIAN SALLADE AND PATRICIA YOUNG

Marian and Patricia have a show Perspectives at the John Hermann Jr Museum in Bellevue, PA It will be there until June 24. The Museum is located at 318 Lincoln Avenue, Bellevue. The museum is open Saturdays and Sundays 1 to 4 PM. The museum is a beautiful venue with large rooms and terrific lighting on the paintings.

Marian Sallade

Since childhood my passion has been to create art.

Oil and pastel are my favorite mediums and I prefer to paint out of doors when the weather permits.

Each season offers a variety of color changes which are challenging and fun.

I am grateful to be able to experience the joy of creating.

Marian is a native of Pittsburgh. She studied art at Carnegie Mellon and LaRoche College, and attended workshops and classes taught by prominent artists. She believes learning is a life-long process. Her membership is in the Pittsburgh Pastel Artist League, North Hills Art Center and the Cranberry Artists Network, and is represented by The Gallery on 43rd Street in Lawrenceville, as well as the Panza Gallery in Millvale.

Patricia Mae Young

As a child I drew murals on my bedroom wall with the approval of my grandmother. Encouraged through school to paint, I took classes at Carnegie Mellon University. I then studied commercial art at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, freelancing for many years as an illustrator for furniture stores and taking fine art classes at night.

My artistic spirit has been influenced by my travels. I've studied the tropical splendor of Southeast Asia and recorded the art of Aboriginal sandstone paintings in Australia. I've experienced the breathless heights of the the Tibetan plateau and the brilliant light of Provence. Now in Pittsburgh, I have found a hilltop to relax and plan the next painting.

Travelling expands my perspectives, allowing me to see the wondrous variety of nature. As I travel I translate nature's art into my own. My subjects vary, reflecting the individuality of nature.

Please enjoy the art.
